And Pauline Wright Higgins, of course, has loaned her talents to instruct many WLO performers in correct voice techniques. Besides, Mrs. Higgins has the distinction of seeing all 50 Windsor Light Opera productions. My Fair Lady for 1974 makes number 50.

Mrs. William Wright, a native of the lake front, Gosfield South, died at her home east of Oxley on Thursday morning of last week. She was taken ill Sunday before with inflammation of the lungs and her decline was very sudden. The funeral took place Saturday afternoon, services being conducted at the home by Rev. George W. Young, pastor Harrow Baptist church, assisted by Rev. Mr. Sherman, and Rev. Mr. Quinn, of Essex. The remains were interred in Erie cemetery, the pallbearers being Arthur Brimner, Ernest Iler, Alanson Iler, Florin Hubbell, Culver Arner and Lewis Iler. Mrs. Wright was very highly respected, and the funeral was an outpouring of people from all over the two townships. Mrs. Wright was a daughter born to the late Leonard Scratch and his second wife, Sophia Agla, on what is now the Alpheus Adams farm. Of the first family, Mrs. Charles Iler, who now lives with her son Forest, is the only surviving member. By the second wife there was a family of three daughters and two sons, and Mrs. Wright's death is the second break. The others are Mrs. Richard Iler, of Harrow; Mrs. Samuel Iler (deceased), Elihu and Alanson Scratch, of Kingsville. The subject of this sketch was married to Mr. Wright when 23 years of age, by the late Uncle Jacob Iler (deceased), and to them was born a family of three daughters—Josie, Mrs. William Wride, of Gosfield South; Winnie, Mrs. Edgar Iler, of Detroit, and Annie, Mrs. Ellis Laramie, of Colchester South. To the bereaved husband and family will be extended the sincere sympathy of the community.

Mary was a baptized Methodist but was not permitted to take Communion in the Iler Baptist Church.

A Short History of Families Who Migrated to
This Area Following the War of American Independence

Re-printed from the Files of The Kingsville Reporter of 1908 Where It Appeared as a Series of Articles Written by a Mr. P. B. Owens

In Virginia, the colony so named by Sir Walter Raleigh, in honor of his benefactress and sovereign, the Virgin Queen Elizabeth, there was living at the close of the war of the Revolution of the American colonies a young man, by name Leonard Scratch, a soldier from the old land who had fought on the British side in many battles of the Revolution, but had now been honorably discharged from the Army. In the meantime Leonard had courted, proposed and been accepted by petite and pretty Mary Munger, and now they wanted to marry and go to Canada that they might continue to live under the protection of the British flag. But when Mary's parents were asked to consent to this they absolutely refused to do so. They were satisfied with the new form of Government and they would not allow their daughter to leave them for what seemed then to be the far off wilds of Canada, even as the wife of so worthy a young man as Leonard Scratch. As is usual in such cases, this refusal of parental approval did not end the matter, for like all true lovers Leonard and Mary sincerely believed they could not continue to live without each other, but they resolved not to marry without the consent of Mary's parents.

It so happened that at the time our narrative opens, the Mungers and some of their friends proposed moving to the new territory of Kentucky, and hew out for themselves new homes there, and when Mary pleaded with her father not to take her away from her accepted lover, he was at last moved to say to Leonard, "Come with us to Kentucky, and when with your assistance we have made homes there for ourselves and for you, we will give you our daughter in marriage."

Leonard agreed to this, not because the conditions were just and right, but because his love for Mary was such that he was willing to serve her father for her, even as Jacob did for Rachel. Preparations for the journey to Kentucky were soon completed, the women and children on horseback and all their camp supplies securely placed on pack horses, the men on foot carrying guns for use in repelling attacks of hostile Indians, and for killing of game animals and birds for a supply of food for the party.

There was no wagon road of any kind crossing the Alleghany mountains at that time. The spring weather being delightfully fine, rapid progress was made and the party was soon well into Western Virginia, where another party going to Kentucky was overtaken. In this party there happened to be a clergyman, having legal authority to perform the marriage ceremony. Leonard took advantage of the presence of this minister to say to Mary's father: "Allow us to marry right here and now. If you refuse your consent to this proposal I will at once return east."

He was morally justified in taking this stand, because he had found that it was only because of the special knowledge he had acquired while on duty in the British Army of the only practical trail through western Virginia into Kentucky that led Mr. Munger to make him the offer of Mary's hand in marriage on conditions that might take years to fulfil. There being no other course open to the parents of Mary, their consent to the marriage was given and preparations for the wedding were at once commenced at the place in the wilderness where the parties then were two parallel colonnades, the columns of which were giant oak trees, between the colonnades was level ground covered by a carpet of bright green and golden mosses and such soft pale green grasses as grow only in the shade of forest trees. The foliage of smaller trees formed walls of living green on the sides and at the ends of this magnificent but natural edifice, leafy branches of the oaks meeting and interlacing above formed an arched ceiling, the bright sunlight falling on these walls and ceilings produced frescoes more beautiful than any ever painted by the hand of man. It was in this place, grander than any temple ever built by ancient Egyptian, Greek or Roman, that Leonard Scratch and Mary Munger were united in the holy estate of matrimony in accordance with the laws of God and man.

There was nothing lacking to make the wedding a real joy to all present. Even the want of a grand organ or wedding bells was not felt, for the feathered songsters of the wood poured forth their sweetest melodies as the party marched out to the dejeuner which had been prepared for all.

We will not now describe the gown of the bride further than to say it was not of "Parisian creation" but we must not omit to say that her bridal wreath made of the lovely blossoms of the dogwood tree, was far more beautiful than any bridal wreath of orange blossoms ever worn by queen or princess. On the conclusion of the wedding festivities, the party proceeded on its way into Kentucky, near where the city of Covington now stands.

On their arrival there they found it necessary to construct a fort or stockade, inside of which they could retreat in case of being attacked by Indians while clearing lands for planting the following spring. The fall and winter were spent at this work, and in the spring they went out to plant their clearings with a gun in one hand and a hoe, spade or an axe in the other. But one day a larger body than usual of hostile Indians came down upon them, killing, robbing or taking captive any of the settlers not able to get within the stockade in time to save themselves.

On account of the delicate condition of Leonard's wife he was not able to reach the stockade with her in time, and they were both captured, as were several others who had been working further from the fort. The raiders, who numbered about 200, at once recrossed the river into Ohio, carrying their captives with them. On landing the raiders broke up into several small bands, each band taking such captives as suited it best for carrying camp supplies and doing other hard work. The Indian makes his squaw do all the hard work on the trail and in camp, as such work is beneath his dignity, and therefore the captured white women were put at such work no matter how weak they were. They made the white men perform the same kind as they felt they humiliated them by compelling them to do "squaw work". In dividing up the captives to the different bands, Leonard and his wife were at once separated and one did not know even the direction the other had been taken.

The band taking Leonard took great fun out of making him, a big broad shouldered six footer, do squaw's work, and so they loaded him up with all he could possibly carry, including a heavy iron pot which they tied on his back in such a way as to cut into his flesh very painfully. He longed for night to come when he might be relieved of his load for a time, but, to his sorrow, when they stopped to go into camp they would not allow the pot to be taken off his shoulders, but compelled him to sit with it still on him and lean back against a tree, the heavy pot cutting into his flesh more painfully, if possible, than when he was on the march.

That night before lying down to sleep the Indians had a sort of vaudeville performance. This consisted of a number of them dancing in a circle around Leonard with a flaming torch in one hand and a tomahawk in the other, which they brandished over his head, not to actually hit him but just "to try his nerves". Even Indians must have some fun now and again.

The band in which Leonard's wife found herself on taking the trail compelled the poor weak woman to carry a load heavier in proportion to her strength than that placed upon her husband. As was to be expected, she had not travelled many miles before the pangs of childbirth came upon her and she became a mother there in the wilderness, her husband she knew not where. Only a short delay was allowed as was the custom with their own women in such cases. She was therefore obliged to take her baby in her arms and follow the band as best she could. Fortunately the portage they were then making was just ending, and the canoes being placed on the stream, she was placed with her baby in one of them where she could lie and rest a little.

The journey by water continued for some days during which time mother and child gained some strength, but on taking the trail again over another portage she was compelled not only to carry her child but several camp utensils besides. Her sufferings of mind and body were now, one would think, more than she was able to bear, but, alas, she was soon to be fated to endure even greater agonies. When nearly at the end of a day's travel on the trail her poor weak body swaying under the load she was carrying, and descending the bank of a small stream which the trail crossed, her foot slipped on some wet leaves, throwing her with her heavy load to the bottom of the bank, the fall crushing the life out of her little child. The dead body was snatched from her by a burly Indian and thrown to one side the trail to be devoured by the first wild beast attracted to the spot. The frantic appeals of the mother to be allowed to close the eyes of her baby and to bury it with her own hands, were brutally disregarded. Not another moment's delay was permitted, and the agonized mother could only take a last look some yards away where the body of her baby lay with its unclosed eyes upward to the sky. The scene was indelably photographed on her memory.

Night was fast falling and the band halted for the night. Soon the howling and then the snarling of wolves were heard in the direction of the spot where the little body of her baby was thrown. After a little while the fighting of the wolves was at an end, and then the poor mother, broken in body and mind, knew her child had received the only burial it was ever to have.

Other captives carried away when Leonard and his wife were captured will be referred to later on. Those taken in that raid, sad to say, found only a small percentage of the number of whites held by the Indians. Many families had been moving from Pennsylvania and Virginia into Kentucky and Ohio and some of their members captured before they had time to protect themselves. A few of those killed or taken into captivity were United Empire Loyalists on their way to Canada. Incidents relating to the latter will be recorded later on. So large had the number held in captivity by the Indians now become as to make the situation in that respect a disgrace to humanity. In this emergency Gerald McCoombs wisely decided to ransom each captive brought to him unharmed at Detroit. Payment being made in bright colored blankets so much admired by the Indians. This plan proved highly successful. Soon boats began to arrive with captives, ransom being in each case paid as promised. The route by which the boats came was in most cases down the Maumee River to Lake Erie, across the head of the Lake and up the Detroit River to Detroit. It took some considerable time for the Indians to collect and bring in all their captives, but it so happened that Leonard Scratch was among those brought in by the first fleet of canoes to arrive. He was not as much reduced in strength as might have been expected considering the hardships he had endured but his great strength and splendid constitution had seemed to carry him through all his torture, but the marks which that iron pot cut into his back he carried with him to his grave, as a few now living can testify.

Leonard still of course was wholly ignorant as to what had become of his wife, yet hoped she had survived and would be brought in. That he might be the first to receive her if she was to arrive with other captives, he took his stand on the river bank where the captives were landed, peering into every female face but many boats had come in without bringing the one face he so anxiously longed for. Hope had well nigh left him but he remained watching what was said to be the last fleet of boats to come in, scrutinizing each face, if possible still more closely. But the last one had been landed and he had not seen his wife. One poor shrunken female form was slowly and painfully making its way up the bank but that was not his wife Mary as he had last known her so he kept his eyes on the boats to see if possibly any more might come ashore. He was thus watching when the little bent, wasted form came up to him and touched his arm saying "Why Leonard do you not know me?" Instantly she was in his arms and carried away to a place of comfort, where she could be nursed back to health and strength, husband and wife again united. Was it possible this poor poor woman could be restored to health after suffering such agonies of body and mind? Yes, for by the mercy of God she was restored to health and lived to become the mother of 10 more children.

The names of the heads of families of United Empire Loyalists who reached the Detroit frontier up to 1785 and later and who subsequently received government land grants in Gosfield, Colchester, and Mersea are as follows, the names are placed alphabetically, so that no one family of them may be given greater honor than another, all being equally deserving of being honored by Canadians for all time for the self-sacrifices they made for the United British Empire after the American colonies.

Hy, Adam and George Bruner's father killed by Indians, John Brush, Phil Fox, John Fulmer, Jacob Iler, Alex McCormick, Peter Malott, Alex Quick, James and Chas. Stewart, Leonard Scratch, Jacob, Henry and Abraham Tofflemire, John Wendel Wigle, John Wilkinson, and John Williams. Col. Matthew Elliott who settled in Malden township but was intimately connected with some of the Loyalists above named as he was in command of the Essex militia during the war of 1812.

Other U. E. Loyalists besides these ransomed at Detroit had arrived on the frontier and all were ready to receive the promised land grant patents but as the Canadian government had not arranged any effective treaty the Indians giving white settlers quiet possessions of the lands required. Nothing substantial could be done by the Loyalists in the way of settlement on the land. Some of them did put up log houses but the Indians proved unfriendly and they had to return to the frontier and wait. The result was that the necessary treaty with the Indians was not made until after the separate Government and Legislature for Upper Canada in 1791 had been established. It was not therefore until 1792 that the government was prepared to issue the patents the Loyalists had waited for so long. In the meantime John Wendel Wigle and Philip Fox had arrived from Pennsylvania with their families and had formed life-long friendships with Leonard Scratch and the other Loyalists which proved of great benefit to each and all during their hardships of pioneer life. This warm friendship has been continued down to the present day. No further time was lost by those Loyalists in getting located on the lands they had chosen and in clearing away forest. Bears and wolves were in great numbers all about the homes of the settlers, the howling of the wolves almost nightly painfully reminded Mrs. Scratch of the sad death and disposal of the body of her first-born child in the wilderness of Ohio.

The depredations of the bears consisted in raiding pig pens and carrying off as much young pork as they required, $20 bounty paid for each pair of wolves' ears by the Government, and the value of the fur of the bear and of its carcass for oil and food soon led to a large reduction of the numbers of these beasts near the dwellings of the farmers.

I must digress for a moment to say that President Roosevelt's statement in his book, "Good Hunting" that bears have been known to run-down, kill and devour horses, cannot surely be founded a fact. I do not like to contradict such a high authority as that of the President of the United States but will say that any horse ever run down and killed by a bear must have been too sick to be fit for food for any decent bear.

Before proceeding to mention some of the more interesting incidents in the lives of the Loyalists in their new homes in Essex, something more may well be written regarding the sufferings inflicted on their captives by the Indians. Leonard Scratch and his wife were not the only such sufferers. The painful experiences of the Tofflemire and Stewart families were perhaps not more agonizing than what other Loyalists suffered, but they were severe indeed as the following facts show. The Tofflemire family were captured in Kentucky at the time Mr. Scratch and his wife were taken. It is believed that the father of the family was killed there, the mother and some other members of the family reaching Canada as before noted. I reemember, when a lad, hearing from the lips of one of this family of tortures of different kinds by which some captives were put to death, while others were made to suffer until life was almost gone, just for the amusement of the Indians, or rather to satisfy their cruel instincts, for Indians have no sense of humor. Perhaps the most devilish form of killing they had in warm weather, was to take their victim, strip him of all his clothing and smear his body all over with honey, tie him up to a tree and leave him to be slowly tortured to death by the swarms of bees, flies, ants and other insects that would soon cover the poor quivering body.

James Stewart was a colonel in the British Army. He had fought at Bunker Hill and at other battles of the Revolutionary War. After the war he remained in Maryland and married Mary Russell there, but like other United Empire Loyalists, he left with his family about the latter end of the century for Canada. The family had made its way across the Alleghenys into Eastern Ohio, where they found the Indians so hostile that they were forced to remain within the stockades of other settlers at night and work the land outside in the day time as best they could. One day Col. Stewart with his three sons, Charles, James and John were doing some farm work some little distance from the stockade when a band of Indians came upon them, killed the father upon the spot and carried off the three sons. The shock to the widowed mother was so great as to render her insane. She remained so for almost six years, when, strange to say, she regained her sanity and set out on horse back to find her sons. After travelling for hundreds of miles, she found two of them, Charles and John, and with these she made her way to Canada, where she found her son James had also arrived, married and been given 200 acres in Colchester Township. Charles, married, was the father of four sons and three daughters, and was granted 400 acres in Mersea Township, his mother living there until her death, at the great age of 107 years. Chas. was an elder in the Baptist Church and was always known as Elder Stewart. He was very dignified in both appearance and deportment: tall and straight, his hair abundant and snow white. In short, as he walked out, carrying a fine gold-headed cane, he looked like what he really was, a man to be trusted.

I was forgetting to say that he practiced the art of bleeding sick people to make them well again. I remember that he was sent for to see my mother some times when she was ill, but all he ever did for her that I remember was to strike his lancet into a vein in her arm, and when an ordinary china bowl full of blood had been drawn, close the wound, bandage the arm, and politely bow himself out honestly believing he had done all that he could for the recovery of his patient's good health.

Elder Stewart died at the advanced age of 104 years, greatly respected by all who had known him. His descendants number up into the hundreds, but being mostly in the female line, many of them do not bear the family name of Stewart. His son Charlie's family, for instance, numbered 14, only two of them sons and one of the two died unmarried.

Of the descendants of the 14 or more United Empire Loyalists settlers in Essex, the number bearing the family names of Wigle and Fox greatly exceed those bearing the family names of any other two of those settlers. The large number of children that came to bless the marriage of each of the sons of Philip Fox and of John Wendel, and the majority born to each family being males caused this great increase in the number of Loyalists bearing the two family names, as the following condensed statement of births and marriages go to show. The number of John Wendel Wigle's children who lived to marry and leave numerous descendants was 11 — five sons and six daughters. The children of Philip Fox, who lived to marry and greatly multiply in the land numbered 10, eight sons and two daughters. The children born to Leonard Scratch numbered 11, but only nine of them, four sons and five daughters, lived to marry and become parents of large families. The first born, a son, met his death in the wilderness of Ohio in the tragic manner already recorded. The second child, also a son, died in infancy on Grosse Isle, Detroit River.

In 1802 John Wigle, the eldest son of John Wendel Wigle married Susanna Scratch, eldest daughter of Leonard Scratch. The children that came to bless this union numbered 15, nine sons and six daughters. In 1805 Wendel Wigle, second son of John Wendel Wigle, married Isabella Scratch, second daughter of Leonard Scratch, the children in this case also numbered 15 — 11 sons and four daughters. All of those 30 children lived to marry and have large families with only one exception. Just think of the great multitude of descendants in the fourth generation bearing the family name of Wigle would result if to each two marriages 20 males to 10 females were brought in each generation. At that rate the number would be 160,000. The sixth generation from John W. Wigle, Philip Fox and Leonard Scratch are now growing up far too numerous for counting.

The three other sons of John W. Wigle married daughters of other Loyalists and raised large families, the majority being sons. Three of the eight sons of Philip Fox married daughters of John W.

Wigle and one John Fox married Dulcianna, a daughter of Wendel Wigle. The other sons married and each of the eight having large families, the number of sons being greater than daughters. Of John W. Wigle's six daughters, three married sons of Philip Fox, one married Theodore Malott, one Solomon Shepley and one Peter Scratch, son of Leonard Scratch, the marriage certificate relating to this last named marriage follows later on. The remaining three sons of Leonard Scratch married, Henry to Isabella Wilkinson, John to Sarah Malott and Leonard to Mary Sellers.

The following marriage certificate of the marriage of Peter Scratch to Mary Wigle is given here to show how difficult it was 100 years ago for the contracting parties to get lawfully married:

Western District

Upper Canada

Colchester, May 3, 1808

"Whereas Peter Scratch and Mary Wigle, both of the Township of Gosfield, are desirous of inter-marrying with each other and there being no person or minister of the church of England within eighteen miles of either of them, they have applied to me for that purpose. Now this is to certify that in persuance of an act of the Legislature of the Province passed in the forty-eighth year of his present Majesty's reign, King George III, I, Alexander Duff, Esq., one of his Majesty's Justices of the Peace, having caused the previous notice by the Statute required to be given, I have this day married the said Peter Scratch and Mary Wigle together and they are become legally contracted together to each other in marriage."

(Signed) Peter Scratch
Mary Wigle

Witnessed, George Friend Sam LaMarsh, Henry Wright, Thomas Girty, Joseph Munger.

The family born to this union numbered eleven, nine sons and two daughters, and they all lived to marry and to become the fathers and mothers of large families.

After the marriage of Peter Scratch to Mary Wigle he received his commission as Ensign in the first regiment of Militia in the County of Essex, commanded by Col. Matthew Elliott. The document is a long one containing many "whereas's" "therefore's" and referring to several Acts of the Parliament of Upper Canada. It defines the duties expected of Ensign Scratch, and expresses confidence in his courage and ability. It is signed as follows:

"Given under my hand and seal at York, Upper Canada, this 5th day of January in the year of our Lord 1809 and in the forty-ninth year of his Majesty's reign.

Francis Gore
Lieutenant Governor
By his Excellency's command
William Halton
Secretary

To Peter Scratch, Esq. in the first regiment of Essex militia."

In the year 1831 Ensign Peter Scratch was appointed Postmaster for the Township of Gosfield by Thos. Allen Staynour, Deputy Postmaster General. After occupancy for several years he resigned and Squire Coatsworth was appointed and held the position for many years. During the entire incumbency of these two Postmasters there was only that one post office for the whole of what is now South Gosfield and North Gosfield. More offices were not really required for very few wrote letters in those days, the rate of postage being what we would call excessive: 50c postage on a letter from Quebec; 40c from Montreal; 25c from York now Toronto, and over 60c from the Old Country do seem pretty high rates when compared with the present rate of 2c to and from any place within the vast British Empire. The building in which the post office was kept all these years is still standing, but its style of architecture not being considered quite as imposing as that now in use, it is now, in its honourable old age, in use as a tobacco barn.

There was not much attention paid to architectural styles by our U. E. Loyalists when they settled in Gosfield at the latter end of the eighteenth century. Their houses then were built of logs, of one or two rooms. If the size of the family necessitated more divisions they were made by hanging blankets. Early in the 19th century, however, they began replacing those log houses with brick ones. Mr. Scratch had the honor of erecting the first brick house in Gosfield. It was for some years the most remarkable thing to be seen in the township and not to have seen Scratch's brick house was to be considered "slow". There was nothing striking about the exterior appearance of the house, but the elaborate finishings of its spacious rooms in red cedar and light colonial woods would even in this day be considered fine. There were breakfast and dining rooms and a hall of baronical proportions. A laughable thing happened the first time Indians were admitted to this hall. They often came to see Mr. Scratch to get his advice, assistance or use of his fishing nets. One morning a larger crowd than usual came in. None of them had ever before seen a carpet on a floor and they supposed it was material for white squaw dresses laid on the floor to be admired for awhile, but not stepped on, before being cut up. There was a small space all around the hall not covered by the carpet, so the Indians as they came in tip-toed along the narrow space and stood with their backs against the wall, their toes turned carefully inward (Indian fashion) so as not to, by any chance touch the carpet. When Mr. Scratch came in they said, pointing to the carpet, "Heap fine for white squaw dress." Colors can never be too bright or pattern design too large to please an Indian.

The house, after being occupied by Mr. Scratch and his descendants for about 100 years was taken down because the changing Lake Erie shore line, where the house stood had made the site unsuitable. The bricks and much of the internal fittings were divided up and given to some of the younger descendants to be used as mementoes in the construction of new dwellings.

✗ Jacob Iler, of Colchester, was the second to build a brick dwelling. It is still standing and being occupied by a family of Ilers. Soon after the Iler house was built the Wigle and Fox families began to build such houses and as in everything else, they undertook they excelled all others, and it was not long before the finest houses in the district belonged to one or the other of these two families, and such is the case down to the present day.

The Wigle, Fox and Scratch families are referred to in this narrative more frequently than are the other Loyalist families not because personally they were deserving of respect but because they happened to become more permanent in many ways. John Wendel Wigle became the owner of about 4000 acres of land. Philip Fox is said to have acquired 3000 acres and Leonard Scratch owned hundreds of acres on the lake front extending west from the lands of the Herrington family for a long distance.

The Kingsville Electric railway power house and many other buildings in that section are on what was a part of Mr. Scratch's estate. Early in last century Mr. Scratch erected a wind-power grist mill on his land. Before then settlers had to take their grain by boat up the lake to mills on the Detroit frontier or on horseback through the woods. Later on water power was applied to operate this mill. I remember when only a little lad in 1841, I think it was, being at the mill and looking at the water "making the wheels go round" was something wonderful to me. I was never there again until this summer in the locality where the mill stood, and I now wanted to see what, if anything of the mill or dam remained. I for weeks had not been able to find the place, but one day in October Mr. Henry P. Scratch and I were strolling through Kingsville Park when he pointed out to me the remains of an old mill dam which I easily recognized as the ruins I had been looking for. The parts of the dam remaining are overgrown by grass and bushes and look more like natural land formations than like an artificial dam. Two large pear trees planted near the dam over 100 years ago bear an abundance of fruit every year. The storms of more than one hundred winters seem to have made those trees too tough to be injured by San Jose scale or by anything else.

In conclusion I must not omit to refer to the active and useful part the U. E. Loyalists, of Essex, performed in the war of 1813. Many of them were yet young enough to take an active part in the war, and many of their sons were old enough to bear arms and they did so. Of the former, Capt. John Wilkinson and others of the Essex militia were engaged in the battle of Lundy's Lane, and those of them with Col. Matthew Elliott gave a good account of themselves at the battle of the River Raisen. But their greatest achievement was in the efficient aid they rendered in driving the enemy from the soil of the Western Districtland in the taking and holding of Detroit when that war ended.

Of course the family names of the descendants of our U. E. Loyalists are increasing yearly in numbers, and I venture to say that at this time a [illegible] the people of Gosfield, Mersea and Colchester Townships (of Gosfield anyway) have United Empire Loyalist blood in their veins. That no more worthy people are to be found in any other part of our country is not wonderful when we remember the indomitable energy, intelligence, industry and christian character of their progenitors, the Pioneer United Empire Loyalist settlers in the County of Essex, Upper Canada.

The board of the Colchester South and Harrow Agricultural Society wish to say "thank you" to everyone in the community who gave of their time and support, both before and during the 117th annual exhibition.

1971 was another successful year for the Harrow Fair and we feel this was due to the co-operation of one and all.

A special thanks to the fine co-operation given the parade chairman, Jack Fawdry and his committee workers; also, the Venturers who worked so hard to keep the grounds neat and tidy.

Death of Two Octogenarians.

We have to report this week the death of two of the oldest women in the township. It seems remarkable that both were born in the old country, both came to this country when young, and both landed at Amherstburg. Afterwards moving into Colchester South, and both were over four score years at their death.

1368 MRS. SOPHIA SCRATCH.

The subject of this sketch departed this life, Friday night, Sept 25th, aged 83 years. She had been in very poor health for some time and her death had been expected for many months. She was born in Germany, and was a daughter of the late John Agla. When she was 9 years of age the family emigrated to this country. One son died at sea, but the parents and two daughters landed at Amherstburg. Mr Agla was employed for some time with late Mr. Berczy, then Postmaster at Amherstburg, but soon quit that work and moved to the Reynolds' farm, Malden. Later they moved to Gosfield South. She was married to the late Leonard Scratch, and took up their residence along the lake. There he died 20 years ago. They had seven of a family, of whom five are living. They are Elihu, Kingsville; Alanson, Gosfield South; Mary, Mrs. William Wright; Susan, Mrs. Samuel Iler; Esmerelda, Mrs. Richard Iler all of Colchester South. Besides she has two brothers, Martin Agla, of Harrow, and Sol. Agla, of Gosfield South. The funeral was held Sunday forenoon at 11 o'clock, the remains being conveyed to the Baptist church, which was filled with sorrowing relatives and friends. Rev. James Smither preached an impressive sermon from Revelations 7. 15. "These are they who came up out of great tribulation." The remains were interred in Erie cemetery, the pallbearers being:—Arthur, Judson, Wilmer and Leonard Agla, Culver Arner and James Ford. Mrs. Scratch was a consistant Christian women and a member of the Baptist church for half a century.

bed. 1900

With regret we record the death of one of our oldest and most highly respected gentlemen, in the person of Joseph Austin who departed this life on Wednesday, June 27th, at 4.30 p.m., at the ripe age of 85 years. Mr. Austin had been failing for a long time, and in spite of what loving friends and relatives could do, quietly slept away. Mr. Austin was born in Mersea, June 16th, 1815, on a large farm then owned by his father. After attaining manhood he married Miss Katherine Agla, of Colchester South, sister of Mrs. Leonard Scratch, of the lake, and Messrs. Solomon Agla, of Arner, and Mortimer Agla, of Harrow. They enjoyed the pleasures of a long married life until the sad death occurred of Mrs. Austin on March 30th, 1889. Since then Uncle Joe made his home at S. Agla's, Arner, and was cared for with the greatest possible kindness. He was a good Christian-living and industrious man, and was very particular about keeping the Sabbath day holy. The funeral took place on Thursday, June 28th, at the Iler settlement church, conducted by Rev. Mr. Smither, of Harrow, interment at Iler settlement cemetery. The pall-bearers were John Higgins, George Fox, George Quick and Jos. McIndoo. The casket was covered with beautiful wreaths of pink and white roses and green smilax given by his young friends. Among those who attended the funeral from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Steed, of Essex; Mrs. Leonard Scratch and son, Elihu, of Kingsville; Mrs. Delia Halstead and daughter, of Harrow; Mr. and Mrs. Art. Agla, of Harrow, and Miss Millie Agla, of Leamington.

Christmas Cards Began In 1842

It would be difficult to imagine the Yuletide season without a deluge of gay and colorful Christmas cards. Yet the custom of exchanging these cheery greetings is just a hundred years old.

It began in 1842, when a 16-year old apprentice engraver, William Maw Egley of London, England, designed a card to send to his friends. Only one hundred copies were made of his quaintly cluttered design, which depicted a formal banquet, a dancing party and a group of skaters.

Beneath the illustration young Egley wrote, "A Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year to You"—a Yuletide greeting which still remains the most popular ever written.

The first Christmas card to win complete acceptance was sent in 1862, by a London publisher Charles Goodal & Sons.

In the twenty years that intervened the idea had spread to the United States, and in 1874 a Boston lithographer, Louis Prang, issued his first Christmas card, thus launching an industry.

Prang's cards were world famous for their beauty and craftsmanship and sold for several dollars each.

They used few of the traditional Christmas scenes, so familiar today, but instead depicted Spring flowers, harvest scenes and children at play.

Many of Prang's designs were borrowed from the paintings of Elihu Vedder, whose murals grace the Library of Congress in Washington, D. C.

From DOMINION newspaper 1809:

PIONEER RESIDENT OF ESSEX DEAD - - Peter Wright, Long Prominent in Politics in Sandwich and the Province.

Peter Wright a lifelong resident of Essex county and at one time a prominent figure in municipal and provincial politics, died yesterday at the home of his son, Eli Wright, in Sandwich, from ailments of old age. If he had lived until September 24 he would have been 80 years of age.

Mr. Wright was a descendent of one of the first families in Essex County, his great grandfather having come from the United States at the close of the revolutionary war. He was born on a farm in Colchester South and continued to live there until a few years ago, when he moved into Kingsville. The illness which proved fatal began last spring, while he was visiting in Sandwich

Following the example of his father, who was at one time reeve of Colchester, Mr. Wright entered municipal life in 1864 as a member of the township council and subsequently received the highest honoers in the gift of the people. As deputy reeve and reeve of the township he occupied a seat in the county council for years and was warden for one year. In politics he was a Conservative and at one time South Essex against W. D. Balfour, coming within 74 votes of being elected.

Mr. Wright was a local preacher in the Methodist church for 40 years, officiating for the last time at the funeral of John Coatsworth Iler, former sheriff of Essex county. He and Sheriff Iler attended the same country school as boys and were life-long friends.

Mr. Wright was a member of a family of nine children, six of whom are still living. He leaves four sons: Colin Wright, New Ontario; Ernest, Toronto; Leonard, Kingsville, and Eli, Sandwich. The body will be taken to Kingsville for burial Saturday.

Pauline Wright Higgins with memorabilia collected during long singing career 59

60 years later, her last song

By Doug Firby
Star Staff Reporter

"The public is to the singer what light is to the painter."

That's how Mrs. Pauline Wright Higgins describes the work she has been doing for nearly 60 years. The quote is taken from an essay she once wrote.

Mrs. Higgins's contralto voice was heard recently in Detroit's Metropolitan Methodist Church for the last time after 41 years.

She was quitting after crossing customs 9,370 times on church-related matters, a friend said at a dinner held for her. She donned robes 3,285 times, and hit 543,293 sweet high notes and two sour ones — both of which she blames on the organist.

A member of Metro's choir, Mrs. Higgins found that with advancing age (she won't say how old she is), and cold waits at the bus stop in winter, it was time to quit.

Now the Riverside Drive East resident teaches music Tuesdays and Thursdays, but she isn't about to sing in church again.

"I just thought I can't go on forever," she said. "It gets quite cold going over there as I do without a car." She never learned to drive.

"Last winter is what did it for me. I've been very lucky, I've never had an unpleasant experience over there, but my family said, 'Don't press your luck.'"

Mrs. Higgins' professional training started at 15 or 16 when she entered Toronto's Royal Conservatory of Music. She was singing at the St. Clair Avenue United Church.

During 1923-24 she sang on Toronto radio station CNRT in the King Edward Hotel, the first station of the Canadian Radio Commission (forerunner of the CBC) in Canada.

She met her husband-to-be, John R. Higgins, at a bank in Toronto. He was the manager and she came in to open an account.

The couple married and moved to Windsor in 1926, and Mrs. Higgins continued her studies at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor under Theodore Harrison.

"I've had a visa ever since then," she said.

She sang for WGHP and later WWJ radio in Detroit, before beginning a long run with the J.L. Hudson Company carol singers.

"I remember we were so busy, on Christmas Eve, I'd come home at 1:30 a.m. and the children (two boys) and my husband were all in bed.

"When I look back, I wonder how I ever stood it, but if it's your life..." and her voice trails off.

Before singing for Metropolitan, she sang 11 years for St. Paul's and Grosse Pointe Memorial Presbyterian churches.

Over the years she sang with almost numberless groups. They include the Wayne University Choral Union, the Jackson Guild of Choir Singers, the Mount Clemens Civic Chorus, the Windsor Choral Union, the Lansing Matinee Musicale, the Windsor Matinee Musicale, the Dearborn Civic Chorus and the Scottish Choir of Windsor.

The biggest moment in her career happened when she was studying singing in New York. Edward Johnson, manager of the Metropolitan Opera, heard her sing and offered her a chance to study for an audition.

But he wanted her to spend two years in New York and two in Italy before the audition. She passed up the opportunity and married Higgins.

Johnson told her that no matter how much training a person receives he won't be a success without natural talent.

And he left her with a phrase she has never forgotten:

"He said, 'When you stand up on stage you're alone with God, and no one can help you.'"

William: chopped wood the day before he died. Alvin Laramie left him in his room and gave hime a glass of water, which he drank and rinsed out his mouth. Had his cap on, leg crossed over and his arm lying on the table. Crutch was in the room also.

He was found in this position after Alvin left him.

Mary: Grandma Wright raised geese. When she came out of the house they flew and ran to greet her.

Possibly one girl born in Canada

Story has it that Henry Wright emigrated as a young boy from England to the U. S. and settled in Rutland, PA, where he married Mary Klingensmith and had all of his eight children. After the Revolution they moved to Canada and settled in Colche ter as early as 1789.

Mrs. P. A. Carver (Muriel Wright) has document proving Henry was born in England, lived in the Colonies and did bring his wife and family up to Colchester in 1789. but there is doubt that they lived in Rutland, PA. "I am still working on this problem so if you have any clues I would be happy to hear from you".

The Twenty-Third Psalm

The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want.
He maketh me to lie down in green pastures:
He leadeth me beside the still waters.
He restoreth my soul: He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for His name's sake.
Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil:
for thou art with me; thy rod and
thy staff they comfort me.
Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies:
thou anointest my head with oil;
my cup runneth over.
Surely goodness and mercy shall follow
me all the days of my life:
and I will dwell in the house of the Lord

March of Dimes camping program

"Because of my wheelchair, I can now sit up for much longer," says Margaret Lynn Orton of Leamington. Margaret is able to enjoy writing prose from her wheelchair provided through the Ontario March of Dimes recently.

---0---

Margaret Lynn Orton, a resident of Leamington District Memorial Hospital, would certainly not call her lifestyle dull.

Margaret has had multiple sclerosis for 23 of her 38 years.

In 1983, Margaret attended the Ontario March of Dimes camp at Albion Hills. "It was so exciting! You had a chance to do all the things you have never done before."

The Ontario March of Dimes camping program is operated at four locations each summer. It is designed to provide an opportunity for adults with physical disabilities who wish to enjoy a residential holiday. The opportunity is there for participants to experience their potential in recreational activities, establish new relationships with others and to ensure a safe and enjoyable holiday.

"Because of my wheelchair I can now sit up for much longer without my back hurting," says Margaret when referring to her wheelchair provided by the Ontario March of Dimes.

Margaret is also an active Detroit Tiger fan. In looking to the future, Margaret plans to actively support her team.

For over 30 years, the agency has worked with physically disabled adults across the province, providing help when it's needed. Programs include providing assistive devices such as wheelchairs, ramps and electronic aids, operating annual summer residential camps at four locations and providing advice to local groups and individuals on issues such as transportation, recreation, accessibility and human rights.

Using the latest innovations in technology, the Ontario March of Dimes now also offers a service to enhance education, communication and employment opportunities in the microcomputer field.

These programs are made possible through the generosity of public donations.

Dear Al and Janet,

What a beautiful wedding we shared in today. Thank you for the invitation. You looked beautiful too, Janet, along with Al in that tux. Hope you got a good night's rest.

One thing about Kevin . . Robert Wasnuk!! He has a great middle name.

I am going to add this to my book on the Iler and Wright Line and need the blank spaces filled in, please...and thanks.

The meal was great. We stopped to see Ruth and took some cake for her and dad. She was so pleased that we stopped. She thought she was going to spend a lonely eveninghome . . . . watching TV lying in bed. We cheered her up good. Dad will be home tomorrow and both of them will be happy again.

You will have to come over some time when I get back from Chicago to see our apartments (Sister Ruth's and mine). I will get back to Royal Oak about 19 or 20th.

It was good to see your mother too and she looks great! I know she was pleased andhappy about it all. Doris too and daughter.

A blessed Thanksgiving to you all and a Christ-filled Christmas to you and yours. Mike is quite a guy.

SING-cerely,

Robert L. Iler

WRIDE, Ralph Albert

Ralph Albert Wride was born on April 20, 1940 in Kingsville, Ontario. He died December 24, 1994 in Flin Flon, Manitoba, after a one year battle with cancer.

Ralph's parents, Albert and Annie Wride were farming in the Kingsville area when he was born. Ralph graduated from grade 13 in Kingsville and went on to train with the RCMP in Regina, Saskatchewan, in 1959. His many postings with the RCMP included Ottawa, Falcon Beach, Grande Rapids, Churchill, Selkirk, Winnipeg and Flin Flon. while in Churchill he also policed the Gillam area with a weekly trip by gas car. For a time he served as part of the personal body guard for Governor General Vanier. On March 5, 1963 he married Priscilla Erickson of Ashern, Manitoba. Also in 1963, while stationed in Altona, he received the Commissioner's Commendation for Bravery for his part in capturing two criminals following a shoot out and a car chase. In 1967 he received the Centennial Medal for Bravery, relating back to the same incident. He served with the RCMP until April of 1977, when he chose to leave the force rather than move from the Flin Flon area. For a time he operated a store, Northern Sporting Goods, in Flin Flon. He was appointed a provincial magistrate for the Flin Flon area in 1978, a position he held until his health made it impossible for him to continue. After the store closed he worked with the safety and security departments of Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Company, also in Flin Flon, where he was employed at the time of his death.

Ralph had a wide range of interests and hobbies. He was the first scuba diver for the RCMP in Manitoba. He held a pilot's license for several years, fought competitively and instructed Judo, and operated his own photography service in Flin Flon. Ralph loved the outdoors and enjoyed canoeing, hunting and fishing, especially fly fishing for Rainbow trout. In more recent years Ralph took up the guitar, wood carving and his own northern Manitoba brand of farming. He and his wife lived a few miles south of Flin Flon at White Lake for the past six years, raising wild boars, rabbits, chickens and various other birds. They also had a greenhouse and large garden. He planned to retire from HBM & S in 1995 and devote himself full time to the farm.

Ralph and Priscilla were charter members of the Flin Flon Alliance Church. He served for many years on the Elder's Board and occassionally taught and preached when called upon.

Ralph was predeceased by both his parents. He is survived by his wife Priscilla, three sons- Daren and wife Kristin with their two children Nicholas and Danielle of Valleyview, Alberta, Dean of Winnipeg, Manitoba, Dale and wife Theresa of Payuk Lake, Manitoba, sister Bonnie Putman of Windsor, Ontario, brother John of Leamington, Ontario and many nieces and nephews.

A Memorial Service was held December 29, 1994 at the Flin Flon Alliance Church, with Reverend Gary Bellamy officiating. Donations in Ralph's memory may be made to the Flin Flon Alliance Church Building Fund or to the Canadian Cancer Society. Dadson Funeral Home was entrusted with the arrangements.

HAFLINGERS

THE HAFLINGER

The long flowing manes and the deep rich colours of the Haflinger ponies are relatively new on the Canadian horseshow circuit. Originating in Austria, they were first brought to North America by Mr. Tempel Smith of Tempel Farms, Illinois, USA in 1958. Here at Dolson Creek Farm, we imported our first 2 Haflingers from Tempel farms in December of 1973. The Haflingers became such an attraction that in February of 1974 we imported 2 more, and in November of 1975 with the importing of 3 more Haflingers we completed the 6 horse hitch. A lot of time and effort went into putting this hitch together and with the sponsorship of John Deere Limited, you can see this magnificent team at various events throughout the area.On June 16th, 1977 the first Haflingers were registered in Canada, and entered in the Canadian Livestock Records as a recognized breed in Canada, and some of these ponies were, the first Haflingers to be registered in Canada. Here at Dolson Creek Farm we think a lot of these ponies. Their attractive colour and good disposition makes them a pleasure to work with and to watch. Anyone interested in these ponies can feel free to contact us at this address.

IN MEMORIAM

LARAMIE: Alvin L. In loving memory of a very special husband, father, grandpa and friend who passed away January 4, 1992.

He lived his life for those he loved
And those he loved remember
We hold him close within our hearts
And there he will remain,
To walk with us throughout our lives
Until we meet again.
They say time heals all things,
But we know this isn't so,
Because it hurts as much today
As it did a year ago.
Always remembered and sadly missed by your family.

The youngsters, as well as adults, enjoyed a brief tour of the Dolson Creek Farm during the celebrations last Saturday of the First Haflinger Anniversary. The Laramies and their forebears have occupied the place for over one hundred years. The animals are a new breed of pony imported from Austria in 1958.

PLOWING a straight furrow has been the mark of a good man for many thousands of years. Near tiny Blytheswood, Ont., the best plowmen of Canada and the United States started competing Tuesday to see who can turn the straightest and cleanest. It's the first time the big contest ever has been held in this area. The four days of plowing will bring 40,000 visitors daily to Blytheswood (pop., 700). Farmers in the area have given plowmen permission to take over 1,600 acres of farmland during the contest. More than $25,000 in prize money will be awarded. Most plowing is by tractor but a handful of plowmen are still competing in the ancient manner—with a plow drawn by beasts.

IN MEMORIAM

ALVIN LARAMIE
8/20/14 - 1/4/92

The horse world has lost a very good friend. Alvin Laramie born and raised at Dolson Creek Farm in Harrow, Ontario now rests in the cemetary bordering his homestead.

Most of us knew Alvin in later years with his Haflingers, but horses were an important part of Alvins life from the time he was about 7 years old. That was when he showed his first mare and foal. Through the years, he bought, sold, raised and trained many horses. He most enjoyed the challenge of breaking the renegades that many wouldn't give a second look.

Alvin's philosophy to successful horse training was that one must first be smarter than the horse. As a result, Alvin's gift for getting along with horses earned him their love and respect.

Before Alvin imported the first Haflinger horses to Canada in 1973, he owned mostly Belgians and a few Percherons. After importing the Haflingers from Tempel Farms, he put a six-horse hitch together. With the Haflingers and sponsorship from John Deere, Alvin toured much of Canada participating in numerous exhibitions. When he wasn't on tour with the hitch, Alvin showed his Haflingers throughout Ontario.

Along with showing, he managed to raise some of the finest Haflingers from his Tempel Farm stock. His favorite mare was Cinara, (Old Cindy), along with the stallion Malcolm and Stockwell before him. Malcolm and Cinara were the very last horses to be sold.

Some may remember the annual summer picnics Alvin and his wife Florence hosted at their farm. All Haflinger owners were invited, even their horses, which some would bring for the day. Haflinger folks came from as far away as Ohio, Michigan, New York and Pennsylvania as well as local Canadians for the festivities.

Alvin's contributions to the Haflinger breed were numerous. Among them, the establishment of the Canadian Haflinger Registry and recognition of the breed in the Canadian Livestock Records.

How fortunate we are that Alvin crossed our path in life. He was a man of integrity with a unique sense of humor and a good friend. He was an excellent horseman, who probably forgot more about horses than many will ever know. He will be greatly missed.

For those who knew him well, it's probably easy to picture Alvin with Cinara, "Old Cindy" together again cultivating a tobacco field in Heaven.

The Twenty-Third Psalm

The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want.
He maketh me to lie down in green pastures:
He leadeth me beside the still waters.
He restoreth my soul: He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for His name's sake.
Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil:
for thou art with me; thy rod and
thy staff they comfort me.
Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies:
thou anointest my head with oil;
my cup runneth over.
Surely goodness and mercy shall follow
me all the days of my life:
and I will dwell in the house of the Lord forever.

Young Teachers At Public School Wed At Harrow Baptist Church

Two young teachers on the staff of the Harrow Public School, Doris L. Laramie and Stephen James Campbell, exchanged their marriage vows to Pastor Charles McGrath at the Harrow Baptist Church, Saturday afternoon at half past two. Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Laramie, R.R. 1, Harrow and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Campbell, Albertville, are the parents of the couple. Rodney Face of Detroit and Arthur Cunningham of Harrow were organist and soloist for the ceremony.

For her marriage the bride wore a peau de soie gown with bell shaped floor length skirt accented by lace appliques at the waistline. The detachable Cathedral train was outlined with lace appliques also. An organza flowered crown held her bouffant veil of silk illusion, in place and she carried a crescent of yellow Sweetheart roses and mums.

The bride's matron of honor was Eleanor Dowler of Harrow, and her two bridesmaids, Linda Lawson of Leamington and Carol Anne Fabok of Harrow. The attendants all wore short bell shaped frocks of bright yellow peau de soie. They were crowned with yellow flowered headpieces with a touch of silk veiling. All wore matching pumps and gloves and carried crescents of oxide mums.

The men in the wedding party were Tom Campbell, best man, William Campbell and John Foster, ushers. Tom and Bill are brothers of the bridegroom and John, a cousin.

The wedding reception was held at the Poplar Inn at Cottam.

For her going away dress, the bride chose to wear a yellow peau de soie dress similar to those worn by her bridesmaids. Her picture hat and accessories were white. On their return they will reside in Harrow in the late Mrs. Arthur Martin's home.

County Farmers Inducted Into Hall Of Fame

ESSEX COUNTY
AGRICULTURAL HALL OF FAME

Eight area farmers became the first inductees into the Essex County Farmers Hall of Fame on Wednesday night at the Harrow Exhibition Hall. The portraits of these pioneers in the farming industry will now grace the showcase in the hall. Above, left to right, Robert Chauvin (representing the late Phillipe Chauvin), Norma Linton (daughter of James Grant), Francis Armstrong (accepting on behalf of the late Fred Armstrong), Madeline Wallace (wife of the late William Wallace), Eugene Whelan, Florence Laramie (wife of the late Alvin Laramie), Robert McCormick (son of the late M. Warden McCormick) and Dr. Brian Buttery of the Harrow Research Station (on behalf of Casper Owen).

Farmers have played a major role in the development and betterment of Essex County over the years and Wednesday night some of these men were honored.

Eight county farmers were the first to be inducted into the Essex County Agricultural Hall of Fame Association and their portraits are now hanging in a gallery at the Harrow Exhibition Hall.

Their backgrounds were diverse and represented several different facets of the farming industry--from research work with hybrids to dairy farming to political activism.

Ninety-five-year-old James Grant, a former Kingsville area farmer, was recognized for his contributions as a pioneer in the hybrid seed corn business. Mr. Grant's work in the field of commercial seed corn saw average corn yields go from 35 bushels per acre for open pollinated varieties in 1940 to over 100 bushels with hybrids over a 20-year period.

He was a grower for Funk's Seeds and also became a distributor and dealer between Windsor and Ottawa until his retirement in 1963. According to Lee Weber, representative of the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food, Mr. Grant is the reason Funk's headquarters are situated where they are.

"If Jim Grant hadn't established it on his farm, Funk's could've wound up in Chatham or elsewhere in Ontario," he said.

Town's Levy Reflects 2.93% Tax Increase

Kingsville Town Council accepted a 2.93 per cent tax increase for their portion of the 1992 budget.

Treasurer Carol Bradbury revealed that this 2.93 percent increase represents the town's portion of the tax base and that it does not reflect the entire tax assessment. "This is only the town's increase and it does not include the tax increases passed by the school boards," she noted.

Councillor Bob Allen also noted that this point should be stressed to the taxpayers. "Our increase reflects the town's portion of the bill and does not represent taxes imposed by the Public School Board, the Separate School Board, Essex Region Conservation Authority or the tax levy of Essex Thanks again for every thing you did and all the materials including the 32 foot roll of Solomon & Elizabeth (Malott) Family, as well as the big chart you put on the cabin.

Thanks for your offering to help, Grace, and working on the picture sheets. I appreciated it.

Got home and Tuesday morning I couldn't find my brief case (with bank books from USA and Canada). Drove back and it was not in the cabin. My heart sank.

Tuesday night a friend was here on business from Chicago area (and sings in my choral group) and so I went back to Canada (twice in one day) we ate and then I went to bank in Harrow and change my accounts in case someone tried to cash anything. I then went to the police to inform and make them aware in case anything. So we went back after I had been there a lot of the day.

Later on Sally Heaton called me and said she saw the typewriter and briefcase on the ground and put them in the other cabin but never told me until her husband told her my problem. I was greatly relieved, I can assure you.

Trust you arrived home safe and sound.

Thanks so much for everything. How many descendants in that 32 foot listing did you say?

Boy, is it pouring and windy. I need to go to the bank and get some shopping for food done too. Lights just went out now!

PIONEER RESIDENT OF ESSEX DEAD - - Peter Wright, Long Prominent in Politics in Sandwich and the Province.

Peter Wright a lifelong resident of Essex county and at one time a prominent figure in municipal and provincial politics, died yesterday at the home of his son, Eli Wright, in Sandwich, from ailments of old age. If he had lived until September 24 he would have been 80 years of age.

Mr. Wright was a descendent of one of the first families in Essex County, his great grandfather having come from the United States at the close of the revolutionary war. He was born on a farm in Colchester South and continued to live there until a few years ago, when he moved into Kingsville. The illness which proved fatal began last spring, while he was visiting in Sandwich

Following the example of his father, who was at one time reeve of Colchester, Mr. Wright entered municipal life in 1864 as a member of the township council and subsequently received the highest honoers in the gift of the people. As deputy reeve and reeve of the township he occupied a seat in the county council for years and was warden for one year. In politics he was a Conservative and at one time South Essex against W. D. Balfour, coming within 74 votes of being elected.

Mr. Wright was a local preacher in the Methodist church for 40 years, officiating for the last time at the funeral of John Coatsworth Iler, former sheriff of Essex county. He and Sheriff Iler attended the same country school as boys and were life-long friends.

Mr. Wright was a member of a family of nine children, six of whom are still living. He leaves four sons: Colin Wright, New Ontario; Ernest, Toronto; Leonard, Kingsville, and Eli, Sandwich. The body will be taken to Kingsville for burial Saturday.

Dear Muriel,

Good talking to you earlier this evening. I wrote to my friends who are also in Valle delOro and told them to go over and introduce themselves to your father. Paul and Vivian Brown live in Orland Park, Illinois, SW suburb of Chicago.

I was at the Kingsville-Gosfield Heritage meeting in KDHS last night. I asked Madeline Malott if she knew your address. She mentioned she had you in high school when she was teaching.

They had Dennis Jackson speak and brought items for display regarding Heinz in Leamington. Rather interesting session. I'm related to Hazen Malott, Mary Gallagher, Jean Arner Walton, etc., etc.

I retired from the music department at Moody January 31, 1990. But I have kept my choral group that I founded and conducted those 30 years. So I still have it and plan on the 31st next October when we begin rehearsals for nine weeks and two performances.

Dad sold the farm - Twin Gables Park - a year ago. It was a real blow to me as it has been in the family for many years. Plans are to set up a Iler Monument in Iler Settlement Cemetery (see enclosed sheet with details that need to be reworded before engraved on the West African black stone.)

We still held the Iler Reunion last year and plan to for July 18, 1993 also. The new owner no longer runs a trailer park and it will be a private home for him.

I still can't figure out where I've seen Damon Wright. It's puzzling! Betty Clark said Jane Rumble Wright married him. She was from Kingsville.

Well, I'll bring this to a close for now.

Sincerely,

Robert L. Iler
